Jun 17, 2016.The Fox News Channel has been granted a temporary restraining order to block NBC from airing an interview the network says contains plans to falsely accuse a Fox News commentator of sexually harassing former Fox News host Gretchen Carlson. The Center for Media and Democracy's PR Watch obtained the order, issued by a federal judge in Washington, D.C. The organization filed the complaint at 11:01 a.m. Eastern time, about 12 hours before the scheduled 6 p.m. broadcast of the interview between Megyn Kelly and Carlson, who has been described as one of the highest-paid women in cable news. "Fox News has always operated with a set of unquestionable, nonnegotiable journalistic standards," CMD said in a statement. "The network is not in the business of granting access for editorial content to paid propaganda outlets." Carlson said in a statement that Fox News is now trying to hide the "false and defamatory story." "Mr. Trump has enough problems at home and has earned every ounce of defamatory publicity Fox News can throw at him," she said. "But we will not allow the rest of us to be dragged into their shameful game." Neither the network nor NBC has made the interview available online or on TV. In a series of tweets, Carlson said the interview is "fake news." First, it was fake news. Now it's a "moving violation." My interview with f678ea9f9e
